

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Dodge Brothers concentrated on one car, and one car only, in a determination to make it as good as a car can be made.

For every part and every process that enters into it they have personally established a standard.

The work done and the materials used in each part and each process in every car, must conform to that standard.

The factories now cover 65 acres of floor space—and are still growing—but there is no department so remote that it does not feel the influence of the Dodge Brothers personal direction.

This intense watchfulness accounts, of course, for the remarkable things you hear about the performance of the car.

In its first year it has acquired a wonderful hold on the good opinion of the American people—and it has not developed a single fault worth talking about.

That it will steadily grow better under the Dodge Brothers generalship goes without saying.

A TALK WITH A BARRE MAN

George L. Cummings, Engineer, of 124 Prospect Street, Tells of an Interesting Experience

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Barre man:

Mr. Cummings says: "I had a constant, dull ache in the small of my back and was bothered by kidney weakness. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Drown's Drug Store, cured these troubles, and there have been only two slight return attacks. At such times, I have taken a few Doan's Kidney Pills and have found prompt relief."

By Special Delivery.

The burglar had just begun his term and was assigned to work in the broom factory. Near him was an oldish man who studied him intently and seemed to be awaiting an opportunity to say something. It came while the overcoat was at the ice water tank. "How long are you in for?" he whispered.

"Twelve years," replied the newcomer.

The veteran looked around nervously and thrust a letter in the burglar's hand. "I'm in for life," he said. "Mail this when you get out."—Johnson's Smoke Rings.

That Was Easy.

"My dear," said a wife to her husband, "do you realize that you have broken a promise you made me?"

"Have I?" said the absent-minded husband. "Well, don't worry about that, dear. I'll fix that all right; I'll make you another one."

That Gentle Hint.

The hour was late, but the young man still lingered. Suddenly a stern voice came from the head of the stairs: "Daughter, would you mind bringing me the morning paper?"—Michigan Gargoyle.

To Decide on Pastor's Resignation.

White River Junction, Nov. 18.—A special meeting of the Universalist parish has been called for next Thursday evening to decide whether the resignation of Hugo Perdelwitz from the pastorate shall be accepted.

The local bigwig's presence in the chair at an entertainment was desired and two of the organizers waited upon him with a deferential request. The required promise was duly obtained.

"You may rely upon me," said the big man. "Friday, the 25th, in the parish room. It's quite an unsectarian affair, I suppose."

"Bless your art, sir," came the reply. "the place was lime-washed only last week. You won't find nothing of the kind on the premises."—London Notes.

1915 BIRD COUNT.

124 Pairs on Average Farm in Northeast —125 Pairs to 100 Acres in Plains.

One hundred and twenty-four pairs of birds nest and raise their families on the average farm of 108 acres in the northeastern states, according to estimates based upon the second annual bird count conducted by the biological survey of the U. S. department of agriculture. In that part of the plains region east of the 100th meridian the count would indicate almost exactly the same density of bird population, 125 pairs of nesting birds to each 100 acres. In the southern states, where the counts were limited to the part of the farm surrounding the home, which naturally supports more birds than tilled areas, there seem to be on the farms where counts were taken 131 pairs of nesting birds to each 100 acres. The counts so far received, however, from these sections do not furnish a sufficient basis for estimating the birds on the remainder of the farm.

In the northeastern states it was estimated that the average bird population of each 100 acres of isolated woodland under observation was 199 pairs, while the average bird population for each 100 acres of the area covered was 125 pairs. The reports from the Rocky mountain states would indicate that the bird population is smaller in this section.

Three 800-acre tracts in New Mexico indicated 17 pairs to 80 acres, or 21 pairs to each 100 acres. Still farther west in the irrigated district of western Colorado two reports indicated that irrigated land in orchard and in fields of grain and root crops supported a bird population of 66 pairs per 100 acres, but on contiguous non-irrigated land the bird life shrank to five pairs for 100 acres. In Arizona a 40-acre tract containing only a few houses, and for the most part covered with desert shrubs, showed a bird population of 50 pairs of 25 species, of which 22 were insectivorous. A semi-desert tract of the same size, covered with brush mostly less than six feet high, showed 31 pairs of 16 species. In the mountains of Arizona, near Flagstaff, a tract of 70 acres covered with yellow pine and Gambel oak supported a bird population of 31 pairs of 18 species.

In California 20 acres of the campus of the University of California showed 87 pairs of 23 species. A tract near Gilroy, Cal., containing 30 acres of fruit and about eight acres of pasture and creek bottom, gave the unusual figure of 176 pairs of 34 species on 38 acres. A similarly dense, though less varied, bird population was found in a 52-acre peach orchard near Port Clinton, O. This showed 108 pairs of common farm birds, 36 pairs of purple martins, and six pairs of English sparrows, a total of 150 pairs of 29 species.

In the south the counts showed an average of 77 pairs of 20 species and five pairs of English sparrow on 83 acres in Florida; in Louisiana an average of 95 pairs of 20 species on 53 acres; and the counts from Texas indicate an average of 91 pairs of birds of 21 species on 60 acres. The average of all counts received from the southern states is 76 pairs of birds of 23 species on a farm of 58 acres.

On the 256 acres on the Cornell university campus at Ithaca, N. Y., a very careful study indicated 573 pairs of nesting birds, an average of 166 pairs of native nesting birds per 100 acres, and 36 nesting birds of English sparrows per 100 acres, or a total of 225 nesting birds per 100 acres. A similar count made near Rhinebeck, N. Y., in a 210-acre section indicated 54 different kinds represented by 366 pairs, nearly the same per acre as shown at Cornell university.

The result of the 1915 bird count just published by the biological survey indicates an average of eight pairs of robins and six pairs of English sparrows on each farm of 108 acres where the count was made in the northeastern states. The average of all reports for two years show seven of robins and five and one-half of English sparrows for each farm covered in this section.

Some Advice to Movie-Mad Girls.

The stage-struck girl is dead; the movie-mad girl has replaced her. The mother of one of these would-be movie queens writes this letter to the editor of the "Better Films" department of the Woman's Home Companion and it is answered in the November issue.

"Screen-Struck Girls."

"What chance has my sixteen-year-old girl to become a screen actress? She is very pretty with a bright, vivacious face. She has had no stage experience, but has acted in amateur theatricals. Is there a good school where she can learn motion picture acting? Mrs. L. E. R., Minnesota."

"Your daughter has probably no chance whatever to become a screen actress. There are hundreds of young girls applying every day at all the studios East and West. Occasionally they are engaged for a day or two, but their earnings are very small. Some are without funds, and too frequently become easy prey for unscrupulous people.

"It is doubtful if there are any legitimate schools for teaching motion picture acting. Film companies usually recruit from applicants who have had some stage experience."

"Here's where I make a name for myself," said the forger as he reached for his fountain pen.—Jack-o'-Lantern.
